

Sacha Darke is Senior Lecturer in Criminology in the Department of Social and Historical Studies, University of Westminster. His doctoral research focused on crime prevention and implementation of the Crime and Disorder Act 1998. He is currently researching on crime and justice in Brazil, and is a founding member of the Global Prisons Research Network (<https://sites.google.com/site/gprnnetwork>). He is currently working on publications based on an ethnographic study of prisoner collaboration and self-governance that he conducted at a police jail in Rio de Janeiro in 2010. He will be returning to Brazil in 2012 to conduct a second study, this time in an NGO administered therapeutic prison that employs no guards at all.

Address: 309 Regent Street, London W1B 2UW. email: s.darke@wmin.ac.uk

Principle publications

- 'The enforcement approach to crime prevention', Critical Social Policy, 31: 410-430 (2011)
- 'Estação Carandiru', Prison Service Journal, 199: 26-28 (2012)
- 'Managing prisons in the absence of guards: An ethnographic study of a police jail in Rio de Janeiro', Focaal (forthcoming, 2012)